Objectives

- Describe commonalities and differences in associate degree and baccalaureate nursing education
- Demonstrate ways in which the two educational approaches work in tandem
- Discuss the implications of educational research in discerning curricular nuances when comparing AD and BSN education
A Lego Perspective:
The Case for a Standards-Driven, Evidence-Based Approach
Baccalaureate outcomes met in associate degree nursing programs

References:

